Finish Fight Between Ford and Union to Be "Sit-Down" Climax

FORD WON'T QUIT

Terms Rumors He'll Shut Down Plant 3 Years "Ridiculous"

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
DETROIT—Some time in the late summer or early fall, the "irresistible force" of John Lewis' unionization drive is going to meet the "immovable body" of Henry Ford's rugged individualism.

Before this happens, a big job of "consolidation" and organization must be done. Getting 100,000 men to sign union cards in the wave of sit-down strikes, and converting those men into a dues-paying, disciplined union are two different things. Before the "Ford Next" slogan becomes a reality, much organization work must be done.

Ford Won't Close
WAYS, Ga.—(AP)—Henry Ford said over the week-end reports he has heard that he planned to shut down his plants in event of a strike were "absolutely untrue."

"I have heard reports that I said we would shut down for three years if necessary, in event of a strike," Ford said at his winter home here. "Well, that's not true. We are not going to shut down. We intend to keep operating to the last man. We'll stand our position."

Ford said there had been no labor trouble in his widely scattered plants, but he had experienced some difficulty with his source of supplies.

"The only object of a strike in any of our plants would be an effort to make us shut down. We don't intend to do that. The international financiers, who are really back of these strikes, have plenty to do besides trying to control industry. Let them create a proper distribution system that will be based upon what each country produces. That would keep them engaged."

"The whole object of the strikes is to kill competition, and we are about the only competition that financiers have at this time. They'll not get anywhere while I'm alive in their efforts to make us shut down."

John Lewis, perhaps remembering Ford's one-time proposal to "get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas," has said that Ford will be on the dotted line by Christmas. Local union leaders on the spot say the active drive to get enough members to approach Ford with authority will be

Third McCaskill Crash Victim Dies

Funeral Service for Marvin Straughn Held Monday at Murfreesboro

Marvin Straughn of McCaskill, died in a Nashville hospital Sunday night, the third Hempstead county victim of a lumber truck wreck 12 miles east of Nashville March 11.

Clark Warren, 50, of McCaskill, was killed almost instantly when his truck crashed from the highway due to a faulty steering gear.

Charlie Griffith, 31, also of McCaskill, sustained injuries that caused his death two days later.

Coy Mims, a fourth occupant of the truck, was reported Monday to still be in a critical condition at the hospital. Mims sustained head and chest injuries, several fractured ribs and lacerations about the body.

Straughn, who died Sunday night, suffered internal injuries and numerous lacerations. He is survived by his widow and two children of McCaskill. Funeral services were to be held Monday at Murfreesboro.

The truck was heavily loaded with lumber. When the truck went into the ditch the lumber shifted, tearing the cab entirely away from the truck and crushing Warren, Straughn and Mims who were riding in the front seat.

MIND Your MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usages by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Are the first and last dances the only ones that a person is obligated to have with his partner?
2. Is it a man's privilege to suggest not finishing a dance?
3. If there is no one serving punch, does the girl serve her partner and herself?
4. If a man is introduced to a girl who has no partner, is he expected to ask her to dance?
5. Should a girl ask her partner to excuse her when another man comes up to the two of them and asks her to dance?
6. What would you do if—
Someone with whom you do not care to dance says, "May I have this dance please?" and you do not have the dance taken?
(a) Say, "I have this taken."
(b) Say, "Thank you, but I'm not dancing now."
(c) Refuse him and if you are asked for the same dance by someone else, accept.

Answers:
1. No, he also has the ones before and after intermission.
2. No.
3. No, the man serves her and then himself.
4. Yes.
5. Yes.
6. Best "What Would You Do?" solution—(b). It is inexcusable rudeness to refuse to dance with one man, then give that same dance to another.

Cross Girl Dying of Crash Injury; Probe Incomplete

Nettie Cross, 18, Unconscious Ever Since School Bus Wreck

ANOTHER CRITICAL

Rev. A. B. Barham Very Ill—Sheriff Bright Probes Accident

Physicians at Cora Donnell hospital at Prescott told The Star at noon Monday that Nettie Cross, one of 20 persons injured in a triple collision between two school buses and a truck late Friday night, was slowly growing weaker.

They held no hope for her recovery. They said she had been unconscious since the wreck. The girl, daughter of a Mount Moriah farmer, suffered a skull fracture and other injuries. Of 17 persons brought to the hospital,

Appeal for Laneburg
Mrs. P. G. Sampson, a member of the Laneburg Parent-Teachers association, issued an appeal Monday for funds to pay hospital expenses of several school children injured in the school bus-truck wreck last Friday night.

Persons wishing to donate are asked to send their contributions to Mrs. Emily Gann at Laneburg, treasurer of the drive. Mrs. Sampson said several of those injured were sons and daughters of poor parents.

Eight remained Monday. A dozen others, less seriously hurt, were taken to private homes after the wreck.

8 Seriously Hurt

Those in the hospital Monday besides the Cross girl are:
The Rev. A. B. Barham, 57; Elmer Harper, 24; Duell Crabbe, 22; Thomas Barksdale, 17; Faye Harper, 15; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lowe, 27 and 21.

Physicians said the condition of the Rev. Mr. Barham, rural Holiness preacher, was more serious than was first reported. He sustained a broken hip and pelvis.

Two other children injured seriously are Faye Harper, broken jaw, pelvis and collar bone and Elmer Harper, crushed chest and broken hip.

Physicians said the other injured were out of danger.
The crash occurred late Friday night when a truck loaded with heavy hickory bolts crashed into two school buses carrying school children and parents home from a school play at Laneburg. The accident occurred south of Laneburg on Highway 19.

The truck, driven by Marvin Wicker of Cole, sideswiped the first bus and then crashed head-on into the second bus which was reported to be 100 yards behind the first bus. All three vehicles were demolished.

Sheriff Investigating
Sheriff Brad Bright told The Star from Prescott Monday that he had not completed his investigation of the triple collision. He said, however, that he had questioned the truck driver and the drivers of the two school buses.

All three vehicles were lighted at the time of the crash, but conflicting tales were told as to which of the drivers occupied the greater part of the space near the center of the road, the sheriff said.

The sheriff said neither of the three drivers had been drinking. The investigation is expected to be completed

Hughes Is Opposed to Court Change

But Confines Opinion Solely to the Efficiency of Larger Body

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, in a letter presented to the senate judiciary committee Monday by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Montana Democrat, said an increase in the number of supreme court justices "would not promote the efficiency of the court."

The chief justice made it clear he was commenting on the increase from the standpoint of efficiency, and "not from any question of policy," which, he said, "I do not discuss."

Wheeler, opening testimony in opposition to the Roosevelt court bill, began by reading Hughes' letter, which the chief justice said was approved by Justices Van Devanter and Brandeis.

2 of 3 Are Liberals

Two of the three justices mentioned in the Associated Press dispatch are liberals, usually voting in favor of administration measures. They are Chief Justice Hughes, Republican, and Justice Brandeis, Democrat, who was elevated to the court by President Woodrow Wilson. Justice Van Devanter is generally understood to be a conservative, opposing administration acts.

Superintendent at New London Breaks Down During Probe

No Authority to Tap Pipeline, But "Was No Objection, Either"

GAS IN TILE WALL

Seepage Due to High Pressure May Have Filled Hollow Walls

NEW LONDON, Texas.—(AP)—Superintendent W. C. Shaw, a frail man torn with grief since the New London school blast killed 455 of his pupils and teachers, broke down Monday during testimony before the military court of inquiry and was taken from the witness stand to an adjoining room.

Shaw had just testified that although the school had no definite authorization to tap the Parade Gasoline company's pipeline for gas to supply the school's heating system, he was of the opinion that the company's superintendent did not "particularly object."

As Shaw told his story, parents and friends of his school children buried the last dead.

The Investigation

NEW LONDON, Texas.—(AP)—A gas company foreman told a military board of inquiry Sunday night "I know" the gas connection at the school where 455 explosion victims were killed was unauthorized. His testimony was challenged by school officials.

D. L. Clark, Parade Gas company foreman, was the witness, adding in cross-examination it was "barely possible" that someone else in the company approved the connection but that he doubted it. Clark said the gas was of no value to the company, which produces oil.

"Absurd," retorted E. W. Reagan, president of the London Consolidated School Board, later when informed of the testimony.

J. R. Kern, another board member said that at least one official of the Parade Gasoline Company knew the school was obtaining gas from the company's line at the time of Thursday's disastrous explosion.

"We are not stealing any gas," Reagan said heatedly. "It is absurd to say that we were connected to the residue gas pipeline without the company's knowledge or permission."

While the School Board president declined to give the name of an official he said:

"You can say we dealt with the proper officials. That will all be brought out when we (school board members and Superintendent W. C. Shaw) are called before the court. Personally, I didn't carry on the negotiations, but there was nothing wrong about it."

Some witnesses had testified belief that the gas radiators heating the school had improper vents which sent the gas into hollow tiles in the walls, leading to an explosion.

Had Been Warned (?)

Two witnesses told a military court Saturday night that they had warned of explosion hazards in the heating system.

Scenes of funeral corteges wound through the hills leading victims to burial grounds, as the court of inquiry sought to determine origin of the explosion.

A. J. Belew, a heating equipment salesman, testified he had warned school officials it was "dangerous" not to install a new gas regulator for the main building of the imposing school group.

Dr. E. P. Schoch, explosions expert from the University of Texas, questioned Belew, representing James B. Clew and Sons Co., Dr. Schoch, who earlier had expressed a theory that an accumulation of gas caused the blast, asked Belew if he had told officials of the regulator fault. The salesman replied:

"I told Mr. Shaw (W. C. Shaw, school superintendent) that it was dangerous. I told him we would have to reduce the pressure."

Belew said that a new gas regulator was installed in the main building some time after January 1 and a change from dry gas to wet gas was made. He said he told school officials the regulator would not hold the increased pressure following the change.

George H. Greenway, Dallas heating engineer and an unsuccessful bidder for the school heating contract, testified "It is a crime to put gas steam radiators in public buildings. When you put in 72 such radiators, you have 72 chances for individual explosions."

Jesse P. Vaughan, an oil field worker, told the court he and a companion who previously had expressed an opinion the explosion was caused by nitroglycerin had changed their minds.

From Contractor Ross Maddox, who had a part in building the school, the

The Family Doctor

Vaccination Against Typhoid Provides Protection for at Least a Year

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

(No. 167)

There are certain methods for preventing typhoid fever that are now well established by widespread use. A vaccine made of killed typhoid germs is of value in preventing the disease.

Thus, in the entire U. S. army, during the World War, there were only about 1,000 cases of typhoid fever among 5,000,000 enrolled troops. If the typhoid rate which prevailed during the Spanish-American War had still existed, there would have been approximately 1,000,000 cases in the World War.

In modern methods of typhoid fever vaccination, the vaccine is given under the skin at intervals of seven days, for three weeks. In the recent midwest floods, many hundreds of thousands of people were vaccinated because of the danger of typhoid fever from sewage and other contamination in water.

From time to time it has been suggested that typhoid vaccine can be given by mouth instead of by injection. These methods have been in an experimental stage, in various parts of the world, but we do not yet know enough about them to be certain that they are reliable.

No one knows how long the protection against typhoid fever lasts after that it is good for more than a year and, perhaps, for more than three years. Soldiers and sailors who are constantly moving about in foreign countries where food and water supplies are not very safe are immunized against typhoid every three years.

In addition to preventing typhoid by means of vaccine, typhoid patients must be controlled so that they will not become a source of the germs. A person who has the disease is kept alone, preferably in a hospital. His room should be near the bath, and must be kept scrupulously clean. No pets should be allowed in the sick room.

The material from his bowels and bladder, his saliva, and all bedding which might be contaminated by materials from the body must be sanitized. Formaldehyde should be added to his urine. Material from his bowels may be disinfected with bleaching powder, cresol, formaldehyde, unslacked lime, and hot water. His sputum may be received in paper cups, which are burned.

The utensils and bedding may be boiled or washed in strong disinfecting solutions. It is important, however, to make certain that the disinfectant solution does not come in contact with the patient's skin.

The patient should have his own dishes, cups, spoons, and glasses. All material left after a meal must be burned and all utensils boiled. The water used to bathe the patient should be disinfected by boiling, or with bleaching powder, before it is allowed to run into the sewers.

Milk bottles should never be taken into the sickroom. The patient's nurse must wash her hands thoroughly with soap and water each time she leaves the room, and should never go to the kitchen or the icebox where there may be food used by other members of the family.

Real prevention of typhoid fever, therefore, depends on a maximum of cleanliness, which means not only sweeping and dusting of the ordinary type, but real bacterial cleanliness, and elimination of every possible infecting germ. The average person should remember that, to avoid typhoid fever, he should never drink water or milk, or eat food when traveling unless certain of its source and its safety.

Earl Carroll, having co-produced a couple of Shirley Temple pictures (not to mention his "Murder at the Vanities," which is best forgotten), now is considered to have learned enough about the movies to make a musical. And, speaking of swimmers, there's a plan afoot to take Johnny Weissmuller and Lupe Velez to the South Seas, costarring them in a native picture.

Other production notes: Jerry Bergh, socialite New Yorker, begins her film career for Grand National in a rip-roaring western.

Robert Taylor has a busy schedule. He has been rushed into "Broadway Melody" and then steps into "The Duke Steps Out"—the latter a comedy probably co-starring Jean Harlow. ## A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

A Stirring Tribute to Coast Guards.

Like so many other good things, we take the U. S. Coast Guard for granted. Not until someone compiles its full record do we realize what a remarkable organization it is, or how faithfully it serves us.

The record has been compiled in readable form by Karl Baarslag, in "Coast Guard to the Rescue" (Farrar & Rinehart; $2.50), and the book is well worth a couple of hours of your time.

The coast guard's slogan is "You have to go out—but you don't have to come back," and the organization lives up to it admirably. Over and over again, in Mr. Baarslag's record, one sees the coast guards taking risks with a quiet, unspectacular fidelity to duty, a sort of inbred heroism, that is simply beyond praise.

The coast guards' functions, as Mr. Baarslag outlines them, are manifold: life-saving, ice patrol, law enforcement, destruction of derelicts, salvaging of ships in distress, policing of remote waters, and so on. Annals of the organization contain more exploits than are fairly hair-raising—and Mr. Baarslag, a graphic writer, does them ample justice.

And you finish reading this book with a new respect for the fine things of which mankind is capable. For here we have a great organization—supported by the taxpayers—whose prime function is to make the sea safer, to rescue the distressed, to render services that ordinary folk could not do for themselves; and the organization does it with great efficiency, with admirable bravery, not for gain but simply from a fine conception of a man's duty to his chosen job.

A world that can support an outfit like that is not lost yet.

Director Rouben Mamoulian showed consideration for extras that is very rare in Hollywood when he sent telegrams to a dozen of them regarding the next day's work.

The wires said: "On Your Paramount Call Tomorrow You Will Be Splashed With Oil." He intended the message as a caution for the wearing of old clothes, but two of the extras interpreted it as an order.

They stopped at filling stations en route to the studio and had themselves doused with oil from head to foot. They arrived wobegone and dripping, leaving a trail of oil wherever they walked.

and Forrest City, Ark. Organizers began arriving here. Perlstein, regional representative of the for organization. All unions of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization are co-operating. Perlstein declared, adding that 0 organizers may be at work within two weeks. "I, myself, have 25 men waiting in Kansas City and they will go directly from there to their places of work within the next few days," Perlstein said, emphasizing the drive is not being started by his union alone, but by Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, hosiery workers and men and women's garment workers organizations affiliated with the C. I. O.

"Did you see the Jackson (Miss.) newspaper's invitation for you to stay out of that state?" an interviewer asked. "No, those things don't mean anything to me," Perlstein said. "You can't step against ocean wave. Unionism is sweeping like a great wave."

He said advance men have been in Arkansas and Mississippi making preliminary studies.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DAHPNE BRETT loved LARRY SMITH, architect. But Daphne had refused to marry Larry until she had accumulated sufficient money to launch JENNIFER, her younger sister, on a career.

Jennifer had proved the selfish sister from the start, defying Daphne at every turn. Finally Jennifer meets GOLDON HERZBERG, theater producer, and apparently finds her work.

Then Daphne is sent on a two-months' sales trip. Before she leaves, Larry again asks her to marry him. But again she refuses, without telling him why. No Larry says goodby, assuming Daphne prefers a career to his love. The final blow comes when Daphne, returning, finds Jennifer dating Larry!

No Daphne decides to play the game herself. She arranges a gorgeous party at the Club Flamingo, inviting Larry, Herzberg, and others. Larry is happy to see Daphne, who proves exceedingly attractive in her new gown. But Daphne is wily and gives special attention to Herzberg, finally inviting him to have tea with her the following Sunday. Larry is puzzled.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIII

DAHPNE blinked until her eyes were open and cuddled deeper under the covers. She felt numb with lack of enough sleep. "What time is it?" she asked sleepily.

Jennifer threw a comb, brush and silver slipper into her overnight case. "Almost 11," she said. "My train leaves at noon and I haven't had any breakfast. Do you mind fixing some coffee and toast?"

Daphne stretched, sighed and threw back the covers. Her feet fumbled and found her slippers. She got into a warm robe. "It must have been 6 when we left the Hammers. Where did you go?"

"Larry said he had to get the 3 o'clock train so Douglas and I went to the station with him. Then we went to Childs for some food. Will you try and hurry that, Daph?"

Daphne put some bread in the toaster. "Anyway it was a good party, wasn't it?"

Jennifer tucking her hair under her hat, remarked, "It was all right for you. What were you and Herzberg chatting so cozily over?"

"Wahhh . . ." Daphne yawned. "This is no time to ask me. I'm too sleepy to remember. What time are you getting back tomorrow?"

"I'm not returning until Monday. I'm driving back with Grace. Daphne, last night did you talk to Herzberg about my getting the part of Louise?"

"Louise?"

"Of course, Louise! Wake up,

Daphne and don't act so dumb. You know I've told you all about it. That's the second lead. The part I want in Herald On Wings."

"Oh, yes, I remember, and you thought she should be played as the fiery type. But I thought that Herzberg agreed with you?"

"He did, after I did a sales job. I thought perhaps you'd tell him how superior it would be done, with that interpretation."

"It's 25 of 12. Did you say your train leaves at noon?"

When Jennifer had gone, Daphne went back to bed. She wished that she could sleep forever and forget Larry as she had seen him last night. Just to see him again had been exquisite agony and to know that she would go on seeing him—with Jennifer—was to twist the pain. She closed her eyes.

THE doorbell brought her back from the edge of sleep. She got into her robe and slippers again and pressed the button.

"Sign here," a messenger boy said. She signed it, gave him a coin and closed the door.

It was the play Herzberg had sent over to her. She propped herself up in bed with pillows at her back and coffee at her side. She read for three hours.

At 9 o'clock that night she put the play in a drawer of her desk and stood before the hearth with her back to it, her head raised and said, "Paul, there has been a great wrong done." She lifted her chin and there was a kind of dignity in the gesture. "It is not for you, nor for me, to judge which of us has been at fault."

Proudly she stood for a moment. Then her hands fell to her side and she lowered her head before she turned slowly away.

Above her head, the small clock on the mantle tinkled five times. Gordon Herzberg put down his teacup.

The girl in the dark red velvet housegown said, "It is not for you, nor for me, to judge which of us has been at fault." She lifted her chin for a moment, then her hands fell to her sides and she lowered her head before she turned slowly away.

"But you've got it! That's exactly what I mean," Herzberg sat back in his chair his hands folded. "Let me pour more tea." She picked up his cup.

"I was wrong," he said slowly. "I was seeing Jennifer in the part when I agreed to the other play—ing. I was very wrong. You've ### shown me Louise."

"Oh, please, Mr. Herzberg. I'm not an actress and I didn't mean for you to . . ." She broke off prettily.

"About what?" she responded and sipped her tea.

"What would you say if I offered you the part of Louise?"

Daphne placed her cup on the table and played with her collar.

"I wouldn't know what to say. You can't mean it?"

"Why not? I know a capable actress when I see one. I gave Jennifer a part when she had had no experience."

"But Jennifer! Oh, she didn't really have a part. This is the one she wants. I couldn't do that. I couldn't do that to Jennifer."

"MY dear young lady, if you will not accept it, I will not give it to Jennifer. I shall find an actress who will play it your way. Jennifer can't do it. She is a different type."

"Will you let me think it over?" she asked, knowing what her answer was to be.

"You'll have to make up your mind by tomorrow morning. I want to open January 15. There'll be only two weeks of rehearsal."

"I'll let you know tomorrow morning," she promised.

Daphne said her prayers. Oh, Lord, please let this be the right thing to do. I am not selfish, I am not cruel. I am not doing this for my own sake. I'm only trying to do what Father would have wanted me to do. I'm doing this for Jennifer's sake. I need Your help so badly. I don't know any other way to be strong enough to show Jennifer what she must learn. Please give me strength and Your help. Please don't let it hurt Jennifer. I don't care if she is angry if only she will see what fair play means. Some day this lesson will mean more to her than the injury. It will make her grow up and realize that other people have rights. By knowing that, she will be able to balance her values, to get more out of life.

JENNIFER leaned on the palms of her hands. Her face was white and her eyes blazed.

"Daphne, answer me, is it true that Herzberg has given you my part? It is! I can see it. Behind my back, you did this unspeakable, perfidious thing to your own sister! I hate you, Daphne Brett!"

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Varied Friendships Best for Child's Development

Do children do better in a big family or a small one? Certainly it is best for the child to have company and to learn the give and take of living with others, as early as he can in life, but on the other hand, there are children who need a certain peaceful environment to develop to the fullest.

Yet, the Chinese accent their multi-family life, because they have a theory thousands of years old, that living in the noise and confusion with all the grandparents, in-laws, and children bunched together in one house, develops peace; because it permits self-withdrawal under any circumstances. The Chinese are, individually and collectively, the most placid of people.

Great men have sometimes come from huge families. Again, the same can be said of the "happiest" men and women. There is nothing to prove that either one or the other is preferable.

One thing is certain—the lone child does need company.

The company he keeps depends on his disposition, too. Nothing is more destructive than rough and ready companions who will tramp out all self-confidence in a child, if he has too little of it anyway.

Where there is one shy and sensible child in the family of several children, he learns a kind of toleration for the extravert brothers and sisters. Intimacy never cuts quite as deeply as mere association. Buddy says, "It's only Jim who hoots when I whistle," and so it's all right.

Outside friends are more important, however, when it comes to feelings. Buddy strains to do his best. He is in a more artificial atmosphere, although it is only the Smiths and Jones youngsters he has known for a year or two. He needs to

Family Night at Revival Monday

Capacity Crowds Attending Hawkins Services at Tabernacle

A packed house greeted the Rev. Floyd Hawkins sermon Sunday night at the Hope Gospel Tabernacle, North Main, on the subject, "What Does America Need Most?" During the discourse he said that the greatest need of this nation is a real return to true religion in the individual and the home, not more legislation or reform or anything along that line necessarily but a revival in the hearts of the people. Hundreds of the people present heartily agreed with him.

The splendid musical program was especially interesting as the large Tabernacle orchestra accompanied the choir and congregational singing and Mrs. Hawkins assisted her husband in a vocal duet.

Monday night the evangelists subject will be, "How May We Protect the Home?" This will be Bible and Family night and a prize will be awarded to the person bringing the oldest Bible and another to the family having the most blood relatives present. This promises to be one of the most interesting services of the entire campaign.

Tuesday night the Rev. Mr. Hawkins will have his subject, "When Will Christ Return?"

court heard that original plans for heating the oil-wet school from a steam boiler were changed to provide individual gas steam radiators "on account of cost, I presume."

No state agency passed on the installation of the radiator system, said Maddox, but he added "it was done according to the code with no formal inspection."

Efforts to strengthen theories that gas accumulated in the hollow tile walls were seen when state Senator Joe Hill of Henderson asked:

"If you didn't get a perfect mortar connection between the pieces of tile intended to convey the gas to the attic, the gas might escape, mightn't it?"

Maddox answered affirmatively and said it was "possible" that it might eventually pervade the entire wall.

John Brophy, Lewis' right-hand man in Detroit, puts it this way: "Organization at Ford's is inevitable. Now that organization is the spirit of the time, the tempo of today's life, it is idle for Ford to think he can build bulkheads around a single motor company that will keep out the tide."

"That tide is rising so fast and so high that it will either break through or overflow any bulkheads he can build."

"If Ford will only employ the same industrial statesmanship or intuition that led him to discard his model T when it was outmoded, then we can hope that an outmoded labor policy can be discarded just as peacefully and easily. But organization is inevitable."

Against this stands Ford's long record of open-ship operation, Ford's long record of struggles against outside influence of bankers, or even of government through the NRA.

Mrs. Broening Is Selector for CCC

Hempstead County Now Enrolling for Quota of 54 at Hope City Hall

Mrs. Sally M. Broening has been designated as Hempstead county selector agent for the Civilian Conservation Corps by Miss Gussie Haynie, state director of selection for the Civilian Conservation Corps in Arkansas.

Hempstead county has been given a quota of 54 white junior enrollees. Young men between the ages of 17 to 28 inclusive who are single and who represent a family of the following groups are eligible:

W. P. A.
Aid to dependent children.
Old age assistance.
General relief.
Rural Resettlement Administration.
It is necessary that both parents sign an agreement that the young man may leave the state of Arkansas for a period of 6 months and that his services are not needed at home. Applications are now being taken at the Welfare office in Hope city hall.

ruthless clubbing of workers by Detroit police is stopped immediately."

The threat was contained in a statement issued by Homer Martin, president of the U. A. W. A., after police had ejected strikers from the Newton Packing company plant and the Bernard Schwartz Cigar company factory. Six persons were injured during rioting which accompanied ejection of 15 women from the cigar factory.

Martin said that "every organized automobile plant in the city will be closed down Monday" unless the raids cease, and that "the 175,000 organized automobile workers of Detroit will mass Tuesday night in Cadillac Square to protest these actions."

Subsequently, Wyndham Mortimer, first vice president of the U. A. W. A., said the strike threat did not apply to plants of General Motors Corp., with which the union signed an agreement last Sunday.

Martin said the U. A. W. A. was "determined that strikers in these smaller plants shall not be the victims of police brutality."

The statement contained no reference to the eight Chrysler plants, which 6,000 strikers are holding in defiance of a court injunction. Since Friday, Sheriff Thomas C. Wilcox has held court writs for the arrest of the strikers.

The strikers told Gov. Frank Murphy in an open letter today that forcible moves to arrest them would lead to "bloodshed and violence," and appealed to the governor to "see that our grievances are adjusted."

Mrs. Jenkins Is Saved by Appeal

State Supreme Court Reverses Poison Conviction Second Time

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—For the second time the supreme court reversed Monday a life sentence given Mrs. Minnie Rose Jenkins for the poison deaths of her three children here in 1934.

She has been tried three times for their deaths.

For the past several months she has been on the state farm for women, unable to make $5,000 appeal bond.

The court Monday upheld the death sentence given James Austin, Jr., 22, negro, for the slaying of John McTigrit, 55, merchant policeman at Hot Springs last August 12.

McLaughlin Machine Reported Lining Up Poll Taxes for 1938

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—Wide-open gambling returned to Hot Springs over the week-end on a peak-time scale as the accusation was made that the well-oiled administration machine is paving the way to retain control of affairs by having the upper hand in the Democratic state primary of 1938 by buying poll tax receipts in wholesale quantities.

At neither Club Belvedere nor the Southern Club was there any indication Saturday night that less than two months ago thousands of dollars worth of gambling equipment had been seized by officers of the Revenue Department and burned publicly at Little Rock. Not only was the business good in these two places, but word was on many tongues that within the next few days still a third swank gambling casino will be opened just a few doors up the street—and upstairs—from Miller's cigar store, another place that was raided by the Revenue Department.

The charge that the administration is at work preparing for the election yet more than a year away came from F. Floyd Huff, Jr., Hot Springs attorney. He said that three days ago he saw, at the Oklahoma race track, an employee of the track soliciting names of strangers for use in obtaining poll

Caught on the fly in the California major league training camps:

Clay Bryant, relief hurler, is the sweetest guy on the Chicago Cubs' squad. Puts seven lumps of sugar in his morning coffee.

Waite Hoyte, Pirate pitcher turned up at San Bernardino with a tan three shades darker than Joe Louis. Spent the off season in Hawaii.

Louis Comiskey, hefty owner of the Chicago White Sox, accompanied his team to Pasadena. Entrained from Chicago in a special suite with a four-poster bed.

Tuck Stainback, Cub outfielder, picked up extra change during the winter selling pajamas in a Los Angeles department store. Won two gold stars for salesmanship.

Charley Root, naval Cub mound veteran, is feeling the twangs of old age. Uses a foot stool when he eats.

A pair of rookie catchers trying out with the White Sox have names that would qualify them for most any football team. They're the Messrs. Kenneth Sylvestri and Ed Skoronksi.

George Rensa, another Pale Hose rookie, is mad enough to crack a bat over someone's noggin. Lost his baggage somewhere between Chicago and Pasadena.

Fighting for a spot in the Cub backstop department is Harold Suewe, fresh from Birmingham. Suewe once studied for the priesthood.

Manager Pie Traynor of the Pirates couldn't remember his speech when posing for movie newsreel men. Muffled his lines through four takes.

President Bill Benswanger of the Bucs is a pipe smoker. A foul pipe smoker.

Pitcher Ded Lucas brought a new set of golf clubs to the Pirate camp but Manager Traynor won't permit anyone on the links this year. Thinks it's bad for the eyes and the swing.

Uniforms on some of the White Sox rookies look like they were bought with soap coupons. Some of 'em are at least four sizes too big.

Rip Collins, new Cub first baseman, is a whiz at juggling a baseball. Puts on an act funnier than the three Ritz brothers combined.

Frank Demaree, Cub outfielder who got a $1500 raise in the holdout route, is practically recovered from his auto accident. Wears only one bandage—over his right eye.

Both the American and National League batting champions are training in California—Luke Appling at Pasadena and Paul Waner at San Berdo.

Boss Jimmy Dykes of the Pale Hose exerts at after-dinner speeches as well as pep talks. May start charging for the orating if requests get too numerous. Thinks $25 for after-lunch speeches, and $50 for after-dinner talks would be fair.

The same Mr. Dykes, who preceded his squad to California by three weeks, didn't do so well at Santa Anita. "I own't at least three pages," he says.

Vernon Kennedy, ace White Sox hurler, spit a finger the first day in camp. Mr. Kennedy split the finger when he picked up a Pasadena bathing

Athletics Don't Like the High Altitude of Mexico

Plow Horse Turns Out Racer at Spa

Billie Alabama Has Pulled Plow Four Years, Says Owner

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(AP)—The race track fan's oft-spoken crack, "that horse ought to be hitched to a plow," is only a crack, but that is where Billie Alabama, a second place winner at Oaklawn last week, has been for four years.

The six-year-old horse's owner, Eugene "Mystery Man" Lutz, a veteran of 70, attests to the truth of the story. Lutz said a Texas rancher traded a mule for Billie Alabama when he was four months old. Keeping him on the ranch and training him for the races, the Texan entered him at Arlington Downs as a two year old.

Billie Alabama, after cutting up something awful at the post, finished 100 lengths behind the winner. Lutz vouches for that, too.

The horse's owner, said Lutz, was so tired he took his entry back to the ranch and hitched him to plow. He stayed there for four years.

At the beginning of the year, the rancher returned, his disbeliever, equine to the track and tried racing him again. He hadn't improved. Finally, in desperation, the Texan approached Lutz.

"Say," he said, "I've got a horse with a lot of speed but he's a bad actor. I'll trade him if you've got a mare."

Lutz had a mare. "I had tried to sell her for $50 and couldn't get it," the "mystery man" of racing laughed in telling the story. "Anyway, we traded."

"I started Billie Alabama and he was still bad at the post. I went over to the starter and we began petting and coaxing him. Then I schooled him diligently. Now he hardly moves at the barrier. He's run four times since I got him. Twice he finished last. The next time he was fourth. Last week he was second and looked plenty good. I believe he's going to show something yet. But I'll swear to you he has spent four years in front of a plow down in Texas."

Lutz has a hankering for picking up "no good" horses. He told about the most famous mount of his stables, "Messenger Boy," bought for $135 and proved a record breaker.

In 1911, says Lutz, Messenger Boy broke the world record for the four mile endurance race at Louisville. He later broke a leg at a breeding farm.

Lutz has six horses at Oaklawn and nine others at his Cleveland, Ohio, farm. His son has seven at Houston.

Doc Ledbetter Accepts Hobbs Coaching Post

ROGERS, Ark.—(AP)—Coach Homer (Doc) Ledbetter of Rogers high school said Sunday he has accepted a similar position at Hobbs, N. M. He will report next fall.

Two of Baseball's Masterminds Puts Okeh On Feller

By NEA Service

NEW YORK.—While the majority of pseudo-experts are picking young Bob Feller, sensational Cleveland Indians' rookie pitcher prospect, apart, and not a few of them forecasting failure for the youngster, two of the most astute managers in baseball are predicting a rosy future for the youth.

They are Joe McCarthy, boss of the New York Yankees, and Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Browns. Both agree that young Feller will become one of the greatest pitchers of all time.

In the Training Camps

GULFPORT, Miss.—(AP)—The New York Giants hammered out an eight to one victory over the Cleveland Indians in an eight-inning exhibition game Sunday as Hal Schumacher, Al Smith and Dick Coffman combined to limit the tribe to six hits.

A four-run blast in the second inning when Danann, Bartell, Chizzio and Ott made hits and Campbell muffed Joe Moore's short fly, and a three-run rally in the eighth produced most of the runs.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP)—An eleventh-inning home run by Ernie (Chief) Koy, rookie outfielder, gave the New York Yankees their fourth season over the Boston Bees, 6 to 5, Sunday. The home run came with two out off the delivery of Ira Hutchinson.

The Yanks tied the score with two runs in the ninth on singles by Selkirk, Johnson, Rolfe and Glenn after the Bees had nicked Johnny Bronco for three tallies in the fifth to take the lead.

ORLANDO, Fla.—(AP)—Washington hitters had a fast Sunday battering three Philadelphia pitchers for 19 hits and a 15 to 7 victory.

The storm broke most furiously in the sixth when Washington scored nine runs, four of them by Hurler Jack Salveson who blasted out a homer with the bases full. Third Baseman Buddy Lewis poked out the game's other home run.

Salveson fared less successfully on the mound, the Phillies scoring five of their seven runs off him and eight of their 13 hits.

MEXICO CITY.—(AP)—Wally Moses, pressed into action late, connected with a home run with two mates aboard in his only batting chance to help the Philadelphia Athletics vanquish the agriculture team in Sunday's exhibition game, 7 to 3.

Moses, in three games since reaching camp, has made eight hits, including two home runs, in ten times at bat and has scored six runs. Last year he batted .345 in the American League competition.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—(AP)—The Cardinals came out of their four-game losing streak here Sunday in a 5 to 2 victory over their American Association cousin, Columbus. The pickings were not so easy for the Cardinals held only a one-run lead until Terry Moore rapped out a homer with a mate aboard in the eighth inning.

NEWPORT, Ark.—(AP)—Director Cray Parker announced Sunday that spring training for the Newport Cardinals of the class D Northeast Arkansas League will start here April 19.

Manager Thorpe Hamilton will go to Greenville, Miss. next Sunday to scout for material. He will make another trip to Springfield, Mo., April 4 for the same purpose.

High grade corporation bonds joined in the slump, although the fall in prices was less pronounced.

Wall Street experts, in the face of the renewed selling, sought some adequate explanation for the situation in a complex mixture of influences which included:

1. Growing evidence that the price of money is gradually on the upturn, making the present wide premiums on federal obligations less attractive to buyers.

2. Higher reserve requirements of Federal Reserve member banks, to become effective May 1, forcing some banks to sell securities to provide cash.

3. Investors' psychology, which induced selling as holders saw the profits of a long rise slip through their fingers.

4. Desire of banks to avoid impairment of reserves through carrying securities at less than cost prices.

5. A tendency to wipe out the undue spread which had existed between returns from federal loans and high grade corporate issues.

Selling pressure appeared almost at the outset of Saturday's session and continued through the short Saturday trading. Most loans, federal and low-yield corporate, were at or near their poorest level for the day at the close.

Soldier Pirate SAN BERNARDINO, Calif.—Bill Desmond, rookie pitcher who is getting a trial with the Pittsburgh Pirates here, is on a 60-day furlough from the U. S. army. He came from Fort Bliss.

The first amateur outdoor athletic games in America were held in New York on October 21, 1871.

W. E. Seaton pleaded guilty to drunkenness and was fined $10.

Gus Hill pleaded guilty to petty larceny and was fined $25 and sentenced to a day in jail.

A charge of overdraft against W. A. Somnerville was dismissed on payment of cost. J. W. Phillips was fined $10 on a charge of overdraft.

Braddock Rejects $350,000 Contract

Heavyweight Champion Is Holding Out for $400,000 to Fight Schmeling

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Heavyweight Champion Jim Braddock, still holding out for a $400,000 minimum, turned down Sunday an offer of $350,000 for a title fight with Max Schmeling in Berlin this summer. Although Schmeling told the title holder, the Deutsche Halle A. G. had increased its previous $250,000 guarantee by $100,000, Braddock, through his Manager Joe Gould, refused to give up his $500,000 fight with Joe Louis in Chicago in June for less than the previous minimum he had set.

"In addition," Gould said, Schmeling will have to straighten things out with Madison Square Garden and Promotor Mike Jacobs so that there will be no legal complications."

He referred to the contract Madison Square Garden holds for a Braddock-Schmeling title fight in its Long Island City bowl on June 3. Braddock turned his back on that contract to sign for the fight with Louis in Chicago.

Schmeling, making his announcement through his American representative, Joe Jacobs, said he also had offered Madison Square Garden $50,000 to release the Braddock-Schmeling fight, but that the garden had refused, pending court action they expect to take against the Louis-Braddock go.

Razorbacks Bring Training to Close

Spring Football Concluded Saturday; Rookies Beat Regulars

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—Greenhorn members of the University of Arkansas football squad outplayed the regulars in a regulation game here Saturday, winning nine to six to close the Razorback's spring training grind.

End Dick Tipton caught Fullback Ray Cole of the "Reds" or regulars behind his goal for a safety in the first quarter. A 40-yard pass, Joe Briley to Art Withers, gave the "Whites" a touchdown in the second period and Withers added the extra point from placement.

Halfback Ralph Atwood received a 25-yard forward from his running mate, Jack Gray, and reeled 75 yards for the "Reds" lone touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Several hundred fans, including Governor Carl E. Bailey, viewed a chill March wind to watch the game.

U. S. Bonds Decline; Finance Is Shaken

But Cheap Money Era Is Passing—Investors Want Profit

NEW YORK.—(AP)—United States government bonds resumed their downward march over the week-end in the heaviest Saturday trading since last October, with losses running as high as $10.00 per $1,000 face value bond, and few buyers in the field.

The decline, which bankers said was engendered in part by a conviction of investors that higher returns on their money was overdue, carried some issues to new low prices—and new high yields—for 1937.

Since the sharp downward movement began March 12, declines in some instances have reached as high as $30 per $1,000 face value. Gains of the long upward climb of the second half of 1936 have in several cases been wiped out.

High grade corporation bonds joined in the slump, although the fall in prices was less pronounced.

Wall Street experts, in the face of the renewed selling, sought some adequate explanation for the situation in a complex mixture of influences which included:

1. Growing evidence that the price of money is gradually on the upturn, making the present wide premiums on federal obligations less attractive to buyers.

2. Higher reserve requirements of Federal Reserve member banks, to become effective May 1, forcing some banks to sell securities to provide cash.

3. Investors' psychology, which induced selling as holders saw the profits of a long rise slip through their fingers.

4. Desire of banks to avoid impairment of reserves through carrying securities at less than cost prices.

5. A tendency to wipe out the undue spread which had existed between returns from federal loans and high grade corporate issues.

Selling pressure appeared almost at the outset of Saturday's session and continued through the short Saturday trading. Most loans, federal and low-yield corporate, were at or near their poorest level for the day at the close.

Soldier Pirate SAN BERNARDINO, Calif.—Bill Desmond, rookie pitcher who is getting a trial with the Pittsburgh Pirates here, is on a 60-day furlough from the U. S. army. He came from Fort Bliss.

The first amateur outdoor athletic games in America were held in New York on October 21, 1871.

W. E. Seaton pleaded guilty to drunkenness and was fined $10.

Gus Hill pleaded guilty to petty larceny and was fined $25 and sentenced to a day in jail.

A charge of overdraft against W. A. Somnerville was dismissed on payment of cost. J. W. Phillips was fined $10 on a charge of overdraft.

Socialism Grips 2 Tropic Nations

Bolivia and Paraguay Now Governed by Change-ful Dictators

By PAUL SANDERS
Associated Press Correspondent

BUENOS AIRES.—(AP)—South America's problem children—underdeveloped Bolivia and Paraguay, who have not yet settled their territorial dispute from the Gran Chaco war—are giving their large neighbors something else to talk about. They are planning new constitutions.

The two military men who came to power in the countries during the political convulsions which followed the struggle both have indicated their sympathy for socialism. But how far either government will depart from the traditional federal pattern of the United States remains to be seen.

In Paraguay, Col. Rafael Franco, who has been president a year, proclaimed "totalitarianism" as one of his first act but amended that to a "a natural democracy of workers and peasants."

In Bolivia, Col. David Toro proclaimed:

The real old timers have slowed down, but several veterans of lesser years, such as "Jumping Jack" McCracken, Safeway's All-America forward; Jay Weallenstrom, Bartlesville's All-America guard; Herman Fischer, Kansas City Trails fine guard, and others still can gallop with the best.

Several lads with two or three tournaments behind them are coming to the front.

ed a "socialistic" state after taking office last May. He announced a 53-point program which provided for compulsory work by all able-bodied men, compulsory organization of workers and employers' syndicates wage increases in accordance with higher living costs, insurance for employees in all commercial enterprises, and gradual nationalization of transports.

Toro's foes, however, assert that machinery to put these measures into effect has never been set up.

Some observers expect a compromise with a legislative house composed of representatives of workers and employers' syndicates, and a senate chosen by popular vote of the people.

Bolivia's constitutional commission will likely recommend a separation of church and state, it is understood, but this relation will not be disturbed in Paraguay.

Team's Spring Training Held Back By Hot Food and the Rarefied Air

Here Is the First of Harry Grayson's Stories on Baseball Training Camps and Prospects for 1937
Major League Clubs

This is the first of a series of stories on major league training camps and 1937 prospects.

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service

MEXICO CITY.—Connie Mack and the Philadelphia Athletics are complaining about the altitude of Mexico City and years for that dear Port Myers, where they trained for so many years.

At first thought, it might be asked just what Senior Mack and his men have to grumble about. They are 7340 feet above the sea, which is 14,038 feet higher than they'll finish in the American League in 1937.

Senior Mack brought the Athletics to the land of the Montezumas for several reasons.

The venerable ambassador realized that they would be made to look and to feel good against semi-professional native clubs, and he could get money without being charged with obtaining it under false pretenses.

The noble athletes were made to feel at home the first day, having to drive a herd of sheep and mules out of the local orchard, Parqua Delia.

Mack felt that his hitters would be encouraged by the baseball traveling like a golf ball when struck on the stout in the rarefied atmosphere of the Mexican capital.

Blows Hot and Cold

What Senior Mack didn't figure on was that his birdlings would toil in below-the-Tropic-of-Cancer heat during the day and when the sun went down have to bundle up as though for a cool night at Collander, Ont.

About all the Athletics have been able to do since the first contingent reached here, February 21, is hit. Pitchers can put little on the pellet, and the entire party is far behind in the conditioning schedule due to the players' inability to run any great distance because they run out of breath. A few days of cold and rain increased the problem.

The stomachs of Bill Werber, Harry Kelley, Carl Doyle, Herman Kink, and several others were upset by highly seasoned Spanish food. Mack had to cumpagin for more American dishes.

Kelley, who won 15 games and was beating everybody when an appendectomy yanked him last fall, worried himself into calling a physician, and then obtained Senior Mack's permission to work with the Minneapolis Millers at New Braunfels, Texas, until the Athletics return to the States, April 1. Kelley's problem is a weighty one, and he couldn't get it off in the country of mountains and temples.

The Athletics sank to their lowest depths when the Philadelphia magnates needed money and Senior Mack decided that it was time to break up his last championship array. Senior Mack, although past the allotted three score years and ten, started to rebuild from the ground up. His outfit now is in the middle stage of the transition, and the venerable leader threatens to stir up considerable trouble in 1938.

Bill Cissell Tries Comeback

Bill Cissell, back from Baltimore, where he hit .350, adds batting punch at second base, and should prove a valuable acquisition if, after all these years and many chances, he behaves himself.

Werber is an ornery little cuss with all kinds of ability, and out of meannesses may turn out to be of more use than Pinky Higgins at third base.

Werber doesn't think much of Joe Cronin, and is out to show the director of the Red Sox that trading him for Higgins was just another of the series of mistakes charged against the management of the Boston brigade.

The crafty Kelley will top the hurling corps, and Lee Ross and Randall Fennington Gumpert, young right-handers who appeared to be future greats last season, should be vastly improved.

To the pitching staff, Senior Mack has added George Caster, who won 25 games and the pennant for the Portland Coasters in 1936; Bud Thomas and Alton Williams, who batted 18 and 17 for Atlanta, respectively; and Edgar Smith, a smart southpaw who recorded 20 victories for Williamsport despite a sore arm.

All of them appear far ahead of George Turbeville, Doyle, and Fink, who struggled along with the A's last term and who still are among those present. Tall Alton Benton is back from Chattanooga for another whirl, and Fred Archer, Tennessee left-handed semi-pro, has picked up where he left off last autumn.

Three Catchers on Squad

Frank Hayes caught 144 games for the A's in 1936 and Earl Brucker, 33-year-old reeve, worked in 150 games for the Portland Coasters, or more than any other backstop in organized baseball. Bill Conroy, who hit .298 for Houston, is the third man.

Chubby Dean will do more than pinch-hit if his fielding holds up at first base. Jack Peterson now has first call at shortstop, although he will have to pad the .248 batting average turned in at Albany to keep the light-hitting but splendid-fielding Skeeter Newsome out of that particular patch of ground. The other infielders are Dick Culler, a second baseman from North Carolina lots; Oliver Blakeney, a shortstop from Sioux City, and Russell Peters, a shortstop and third baseman who hit .314 for Columbus. Peters can't miss being carried.

There are few better all-around outfielders in baseball than that of the A's with Lou Finney flanked by Bop Johnson and Wally Moses. Ace Parker, the great Duke back, and Floyd Young and Bill Nicholson are collegians seeking outfield places in the sun, with the first two the more promising to date.

If the remainder of Senior Mack's aggregation matched his outfield, the Yankees wouldn't win by any 194 games.

China's Copper Coins Smelted Down for War

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Reports from the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce indicate that Chinese smugglers and the masses in general may be benefiting from the British armament program.

Here's how: The British and other armament programs have dragged copper prices upward. Chinese smugglers are exploiting the so-called "ten-cash" copper coins, 292 of which make 30 American cents.

The scarcity has caused the exchange value of the coins to mount.

ROYAL MAIL, WINNER OF 99TH GRAND NATIONAL RACE

After Texas Tragedy

Scene After School Blast Took 500 Lives

Rescuers, among whom were many frantic parents search the twisted ruins of the New London, Texas, Consolidated School in quest of victims of Nation's worst school disaster after Natural Gas blast demolished building taking 500 lives including teachers and children who were gathered in auditorium. Cries of injured children added to the stark terror of the occasion as volunteers fought way through twisted girders and piles of debris to their aid.

Royal Mail Winner of the Grand National

Making first start over Aintree's treacherous jumps, Royal Mail, a 100 to 6 shot, owned by H. Lloyd Thomas led the field to post by three lengths to win ninety-ninth running of the Grand National Steeplechase. Coolken was second and Pucka Bella third.

As Texas Town Extracted Dead and Injured

Acetylene torches, cutting the twisted steel beams of the massive building, tugging cranes and bare hands work together above as rescue workers carry on their gruesome task of removing bodies of the victims from the ruins of the New London School as a driving rain beat down on the scene. Heart rending scenes were beheld as little victims who escaped death, be-reached rescuers to extricate them from their traps amid the dead and mangled bodies of their schoolmates.

Trip to Court Ends F. W. W. Strike in N. Y.

Sit down strikers who had taken possession of F. W. Woolworth Five and Ten cent store on Fourteenth Street in New York City found themselves enmeshed in the net of the law after their exaction from the premises by swarthy policemen who routed them from their stronghold despite their screams and tears and hustled them to night court from where strikers are pictured above re-entering patrol wagons after being booked on various charges.
